TEMPE ECHOES.

The Tempe fans were holding a practice game of base ball yesterday. The Hardware nine played against the Livery Stable boys. The game had scarcely got under good headway when an accident changed the hilarity into anxiety. The Hardware boys were a little short handed and Chris A. Stewart, a Mexican boy, was imported to take the place of Chaplain Fisk, who refused to play on Sunday. Chris is not particularly noted as a curved pitcher, but rather for the lack of deviation from a straight line. He realized the importance of his position and took aim at the second button on Charlie Mullen, the catcher's shirt. One throw was sufficient for the skilled marksman who shoots jack rabbits with rocks at a distance of sixty yards, sent the red hot ball square over the plate, but the agile catcher was there. His hands closed after the ball passed and it struck the button. Charlie doubled up like a jack knife and for several minutes animation was suspended. By pouring water over and whisky into him he began to get his breath, as he said afterwards, in small quantities, but with sufficient regularity to cause him to wish for more of it. He was all right next morning. This broke up the game, making it the shortest on record, there being but one ball twirled, but it was a stunner.

Col. Upper received a letter yesterday from Capt. Fred Monck, which explains fully the sad accident he met with and how it occurred. He was on his way to Tempe, Arizona, having started from Denver, and was in Pueblo waiting for the train. He was standing on the ground leaning against the steps of the car when suddenly and without warning the train started and his body was thrown across the track between the cars. By a superhuman effort he managed to throw his body from the rail, but the passing wheel caught his left arm, crushing it just above the wrist. He was taken to St. Mary's hospital, an institution maintained by the Sisters of Mercy, where he was cared for. He was getting along nicely and thought he would be able to be up by September 1st and almost well two weeks later. Capt. Monck is a general favorite in Tempe, where, as commander of company C, N. G. A., he has shown himself an efficient tactician, a well informed, generous hearted officer as well as an exemplary private citizen. He did not state whether he would still follow out his intentions and come to Tempe, but the inference is that he will, as his leave of absence will soon expire.

Will Standage, one of the Stringtown baseball club and son of W. N. Standage, member of the board of Supervisors, met with an accident which cost him an eye. In company with a party of a dozen or more young people from Mesa and vicinity will went to the mountains for a two weeks' outing. While loading a breech-loading shotgun the hammer slipped and exploded the cartridge, a piece of which cut through his face at the corner of his eye, entirely destroying the sight and otherwise disfiguring his face with powder stains. He started for Tempe and was two days on the road, reaching here yesterday at noon. The wound was dressed by Dr. Jones, who is a skillful surgeon, but the sight is gone, while the eyeball may, if it does not become too much inflamed, be retained.

There appeared upon the streets of Tempe yesterday a solitary vehicle gilded in glittering hues and greatly resembling the monkey cage of a menagerie. A crowd of small boys followed the apparition down the street to the Tempe hotel, when, to the surprise of everyone, there emerged from the vehicle J. P. King of THE REPUBLICAN.

The Pima Indian's long suit as a hunter is in looking in the weeds along the road for empty whisky bottles. They bring in lots of them and sell them two for 5 cents.

George Kane, the tonsorial artist, and his wife left last evening for Chicago to be absent six weeks. They left their three children under the charge of a governess.

Gene Angelman spent Sunday in Phoenix visiting with his sister, Mrs. E. Ganz.

Mrs. E. J. Whitton, of Topsham, Me., has hair which measures 8 feet 3 1/4 inches. It has been growing nineteen years.

A beard 8 feet in length adorns the chin of a man in Liberty, M. When a windstorm prevails, the man buttons his coat over his beard.

The Mexican club of Tempe is making extensive preparations to give a grand ball at Dague's hall on the evening of Sept. 16, in honor of the Eighty-first Anniversary of the Independence of Mexico.

Mesa Department.

MESA CITY, ARIZONA, AUGUST 29, 1893.

MESA NOTES.

Several loads of grain were brought into town this morning by farmers living in the vicinity of Mesa.

Orlando Merrill came up to Mesa yesterday morning on business. The brick work on his fine residence in Mesa is completed and the carpenters will go to work today.

Lamb Bros. returned this morning with a couple of loads of furniture from the hotel they have bought and are transporting it to Goldfield, where they will go into the hotel business.

W. E. Pomeroy came down from Goldfield Saturday night. He reports work going on extensively in the mines and that the richness of the claims promise to make the camp one of the finest on earth.

Mr. William Burton, contractor and builder, of Mesa, has the contract for putting counters and shelving in the grocery and hardware departments of the new Co-op. addition, and with ample aid the work is being rapidly prosecuted.

Mr. Cook, formerly of Los Angeles, has rented and is fixing up the east lower room in the Pomeroy block for a first-class restaurant. Mr. Cook is an old hand at the business and will no doubt make a success of it in our flourishing city.

A couple of wagon loads of drugs were unloaded in the ex-furniture store of Foster & Custer Saturday. Paper hangers and carpenters are now busily engaged in fitting up the building for the establishing of a first-class drug store. Mr. Bailey shows good judgment in starting his business in this city.

A novel party will be given next Friday at the Mesa social hall, by the Y. L. M. I. A. of Mesa. The following is a copy of an invitation: "Old Fashioned Social Bawl. Yeas an' yir partaners aur hereunto axed to come an' have a juvvenile good time on our dance, Frida, September the first 1893. Tickets one half cent a pound for partaner of each gent. Skails at the door. Guests requested to appear in hard times costumes. Refreshments served. By order of Y. L. M. I. A. of Mesa."

The many friends of Mr. Chas. Burton and his amiable wife are pleased to learn that they arrived safely at their home in Mesa Sunday morning. Mrs. Burton has been very ill, having submitted to a very serious surgical operation, which, however, was successful. Desiring to reach the balmy South to enjoy our uncomparable climate, she started while she was yet very weak and was compelled to rest in Los Angeles a few days. She is much better this morning, our exhilarating air having improved her wonderfully.

Marshal Elsworth tackled a tough case yesterday. The man had been drinking and creating a disturbance. Recorder Smith issued a writ under the name of John Doe, his real name not being known. When the Marshal went to arrest him, he resisted, claiming that he was not John Doe, declaring that he would not go alive. The Marshal persisted. After a few cracks with a revolver on his cranium, John Doe consented and was lodged in jail. He was brought before the Recorder and pleading guilty to the charge was given 20 days in the city jail.

The first newspaper published in the world was the Roman Acta Diurna, 691 B. C. The first one published in England, the Mercurius Aulicus, afterwards the Oxford, then London Gazette, was established in January, 1642.
